In a final break from her porno past, Jenna Jameson removes the implants that helped make her a star. She tells Us of the dramatic surgery

ON AUGUST 1, ADULT-film star Jenna Jameson slipped through the back entrance of Beverly Hills plastic surgeon Garth Fisher's office. The reason for the visit: removal of her breast implants. It was part of a total life makeover that began when she stopped making adult movies. Though she continues to run her $30 million-a-year ClubJenna empire (cofounded with Jay Grdina, 39, whom she is divorcing after three years of marriage), these days, the Las Vegas native, 33, is focusing on a Hollywood biopic, a comic book and a clothing line, Hello Jenna, due next year. Nearly two weeks after the three-hour surgery that took the 5-foot-6 star from a D-cup to a C-cup, she sat down with Us's Jeffrey Epstein to discuss her new body, her boyfriend (ultimate fighter Tito Ortiz, 33) and the future.

Why did you have your implants removed?

I got my first breast augmentation at 19. I had beautiful, natural 34Cs, but I was in a career in which big boobs sell. And when you're 19, you make rash decisions. My first pair were saline Ds. Then I went to DDs in silicone. Then I went smaller to Ds in saline, because I was trying to take myself down slowly. When I had implants, I felt uncomfortable. I would be shy at the beach. I know it sounds funny, but I'd wear high-necked clothes — unless I was at an adult-film convention. So I thought, Why don't I be who I am and get my real ones back? I feel so empowered.

How did you feel the day of your surgery?

I was scared. I told Garth [he has performed all of Jameson's surgeries], "You're going to change my life right now." It was a week in bed for me after, so the night before, I put my 1,200-thread-count sheets — and about 14 pillows — on my bed! But it was a lot less pain than putting them in, where they move muscles and carve out pockets.

Was there more to the surgery than removing implants?

Yeah, it was total tuckage action! They're so cute now. Even for women with naturally large boobs, getting a reduction is so freeing. I feel like I can stand up straighter. I can't exercise because they're still tender and I have some stitches. But before, when I jogged, I had to hold my boobs. I looked like I was molesting myself!

How do you stay in shape?

I work out every day. I ride my bike and work out with my boyfriend.

How about diet?

I'm healthy, but I've been cheating the past couple weeks. I'm really into Del Taco and addicted to Pinkberry!

How did you feel when you saw yourself postsurgery?

Ecstatic. The first thing I did when I got home was open my bra. I wasn't supposed to but I did. I was so happy, I cried. It was like looking into the mirror when I was 17.

What would you say to women considering breast augmentation?

Do your research with your doctors. And think about it for a year, then if you still want them, it's OK. But to go back and forth like I did, it's a bummer.

Have you closed the door on adult films forever?

Yes. A hundred percent.

How do you want Hollywood to see you?

I hate to think my breast size dictates the roles I get, but it does. I hope this helps people take me more seriously and lets me be the Jenna Jameson I've always wanted to be.

Who is going to play you in the movie about your life?

I would love Scarlett Johansson to play me. I think Rachel McAdams is amazing, and Sienna Miller.

Would you ever consider playing yourself?

I already lived it. I don't want to live it again.

We hear your ex is dating Shanna Moakler.

I feel sorry for both of them. I was friends with Shanna.

How are you and Tito?

So great. August 20 is our one-year anniversary. I had my surgery while he was in Iraq on a USO tour. He was so excited: "I'm coming home to brand new boobies!" US
